Personal Directions®

“Personal Directions® moves the coaching conversation beyond leadership and career issues. It presents rich developmental opportunities that we would not otherwise discover.”

— John Myers | Keystone Partners
Personal Directions® Certified
Partner for 17 years

Personal and professional satisfaction are inherently linked – both to each other, and to an organization’s success. Personal Directions® is a suite of assessments that goes beyond the workplace and into the world, providing people with life-changing insights.

Excluding the Personal Puts Development at Risk

Use Personal Directions® to reveal:

- What individuals want from the world
- Areas of life where individuals have chosen (both intentionally and unintentionally) to invest their energy and resources
- Unique insights into how individuals feel about the investments and choices they have made
- Actions to consider, based on what they now know about themselves, as they look into the future

In the modern work environment, we don’t expect individuals to leave their personal lives at the door. Today’s professional expects to be recognized – even celebrated – for their whole, authentic self.

A person’s relationship with the world around them provides a fundamental context for their behavior in the workplace and how they approach their professional life.

The Benefits of a Wholistic Approach to Assessment

Professional development is a very personal process. For lasting impact, use an assessment tool that reflects the individual on a deep and wholistic level.

Personal Directions® measures 17 motivational dimensions, 18 life architecture dimensions and 11 quality of life variables to provide individuals with clear, powerful feedback on how they see themselves in significant areas of their lives.

Capitalizing on the insights this feedback brings, Personal Directions® lays a deep, robust foundation for both career development and personal growth to foster individual success at work and in life.

A Three-Part Approach to Deeper Self-Awareness

Personal Directions® is composed of three assessments. Each tool serves a unique purpose, creating an expansive picture of the way the individual experiences their world.
